

I would ask that you please do not do anything to lessen the Indiana privacy law concerning telemarketing calls. In our home, we've gone from 6-10 calls a week, often during evening meals, to almost none. Since this law went into effect, it has definitely improve our quality of life at home. If communities can have laws that prohibit door-to-door sales, then I believe there ought to be allowed laws that can prohibit unwanted intrusions by telemarketers. Please do not dumb down the Indiana law. Thank you.
